Madam Maria Sandal Rørdvi, former Resident of Bassano, and World Famous Singer, is called by Death.

News of the death of Madam Maria Sandal Rørdvi was received in Bassano this week with deep regret. She died at Forest City, Iowa, on Monday, March 2, at the age of about 48 years. Cancer was the cause of death.

Madam Maria Sandal Rørdvi came to Bassano in the fall of 1925 with her husband, Geo. Rørdvi, and children, coming from the Hussar district where the family resided on a farm. She became leader of the choir at Knox Presbyterian Church, and took an active part in musical entertainment and education while resident here. About two years ago the family moved to the United States where Mrs. Rørdvi took treatments for cancer, but she was unable to survive the ravages of the dread disease.

Madam Maria Sandal Rørdvi achieved world fame as a singer before coming to this country. She was formerly of Oslo, Norway, and was a member of the Norwegian Opera, Dresden, and made many concert tours through Russia, England, Hungary, Germany, Sweden, Norway, Finland, Denmark, Canada, and the United States. She was a pupil of Madam Eitelka Gerster, Berlin, world famous pupil of Marchesi. She was a personal friend of Grieg, and appeared with that great Norwegian composer in his last concert, this taking place at Christiania, Norway, on October 17, 1896, the last and queen of Norway being present. She is survived by her husband, George Rørdvi, and three daughters, Berne, age 16, Gerd, 13, and Maria, 6.

SOCIAL EVENTS ARE

POPULAR THIS SEASON
Large Crowds Attending What Defers and Dances Indicate Received Pleasure in These Social Events.

All the whirl drives and dances held in Bassano so far this season have been well patronized. In every case the attendance has been very good, exceeding that of similar events held last year. This is very gratifying to the sponsors, and indicates a revival of interest in the graceful art of terpsichore.

The admission price of 50 cents is a figure within the reach of all even in these times of business depression and doubtless this is a contributing factor in popularizing the dance. At any rate these dances have been popular, and everybody who attends seems to have a most enjoyable time.

Sparks and Flashes From the Anvil of Parliament

(By T. B. Windos.)

The debate in the Alberta legislature flamed up into a blaze of fiery disputation during the last week, such as has not been heard in the legislature chamber for many seasons.

Fireworks began to brighten the atmosphere when W. R. Howson, Liberal member for Edmonton, started a discussion on the subject of the "pall of gloom" that had descended upon the province. He was met by a "reprimand" and an order to "sit down."

Friday, the government began its reply to Howson's attack, and on Monday afternoon, Premier Brownlee proceeded to straighten things out in a vigorous debate of the U. F. A. government, and was followed by others of his party and cabinet.

Altogether the entertainment was of the order and there was nothing of dullness or disinterest in the proceedings. Word had leaked out to the public that there was likely to be a display of warmth on Monday and during the afternoon and evening sessions the galleries of the house were crowded with spectators, who eagerly watched the heated proceedings.

"The trouble began when Mr. Howson raised objection, in a lengthy speech to the fiscal agency of the government and moved its abolition. During his speech he inferred "mild deception" on the part of financial company's in their reports to the government on conditions in the stock markets. Among the firms acting as agents for the government Mr. Howson mentioned the D. M. Duggan Investment Limited, which immediately brought the Conservative leader to his feet in a ringing challenge to the Edmonton Liberal to offer proof for his assertions.

Mr. Howson went steadily on with his argument in favor of his motion and was followed by Mr. Duggan, who again took up the cudgel in the defense of his firm and the others which had been attacked by the opposition speaker. Hon. R. G. Heald, also replied to Mr. Howson's charges during the Friday debate.

The basis of Mr. Howson's attack was a charge that the government could save at least $150,000 this year if its bonds were sold on the open market instead of through the fiscal agency, for which the D. M. Duggan Investment Company acted as Edmonton agency. He declared that he based his argument wholly on the file tabled in the legislature by provincial treasurer Heald, at the request of the Liberal leader, George H. Webster.

The whole of the government's position as revealed by the file, Mr. Howson declared, showed that they were flung with "deception" and marked with "open fraud."

"I realize that my charges are serious," the Edmonton member said, "I cannot substantiate them. I am subject quite properly to a reprimand and am ready to receive it."

Mr. Howson called on the house to notice the "pall of gloom" that featured the whole correspondence with the government by the financial firms. While the blackest sort of picture was being drawn on the western bond outlook, one of the companies involved in the present agency was sending out market letters that gave quite the opposite impression, he declared.

To the exclusion of all other firms in the country the four financial firms of Wood, Cundy, the Imperial (continued on back page)

Large Crowd Attends St. Patrick's Dance

Popular Annual Event Patronized by Many Merymakers—Green is Predominating Color on the Dance Floor.

The seventeenth of Ireland was observed in fitting style in Bassano last Tuesday evening, March 17, when the members of the Ladies Aid Society of the R. C. Church were busily at a card party and dance in the Bascom Community Hall.

Green was to be seen everywhere. The decorations, many of the ladies' dresses, the gentlemen's ties and handkerchiefs were of the national color of Ireland, in various light and dark shades.

The annual event was well attended, many coming for cards, and an additional number coming for the dance. The floor was crowded for the first few hours of dancing, and it was not until the small hours of the morning that the crowd began to thin.

Mrs. Amelia Gronberg and Mr. T. Ingerberg tied with the highest scores for the lady's first prize at whist. These two ladies cut cards to determine the winner, Miss Gronberg being the lucky one.

Mrs. Hinton was awarded the lady's consolation prize. J. Brown won first prize for gentlemen, and H. Gayford the consolation. Mr. Napper, of Rosemary, was the holder of the turkey ticket which won the turkey. Mr. Napper went home before the draw was made, leaving his ticket with Mr. Hinton.

The ladies served a nice lunch, and afterwards the crowd enjoyed an splendid dance to the very good music played by the local orchestra.

FARMERS START FIELD OPERATIONS; SEEDING BEGINS

Fine Weather for Spring Farm Work—Wheat, Barley, and Flax are Growing—Hoping Harrows on Friday—Soil Contains Little Moisture, But Farmers Cheerful

Spring is here, and spring work on the farms has commenced. Many farmers are now busy harrowing, disking, and cultivating.

The balmy, bright spring days are ideal for starting work on the land, and farmers are making the most of the fine weather to get their field work under way.

The first seeding reported will be done by E. F. Maurer, who expects to start drilling wheat, tomorrow, Friday, March 20. This is probably the earliest seeding in the history of the district but Mr. Maurer is confident it will turn out all right. He has about one thousand acres ready for the drill. Other farmers intend to start seeding next week.

The soil is very dry on the surface, but there is a little moisture deep in the ground. Germination and growth will be slow until there is rain.

Nature is Stirring

Buds on the trees and bushes are almost bursting, grass is sending forth green shoots, and nature is stirring everywhere. Apparently the trees have suffered no damage from frost following the early budding some weeks ago, but this cannot be made certain for some little time yet. Glophers are out in great numbers, and while the arrival of ducks and geese is not yet reported, these early spring tourists are expected to put in an appearance any day.

The Pictures

"Ride 'em cowboy!"

You'll whoop with joy when you see and hear the cavalcade of cowboys galloping over the plains in "Montana Moon," the first musical western ever screened, which opens in the Orpheum Theatre Thursday of this week, and is also showing Friday and Saturday, March 20 and 21.

A beautiful picture this. With the great, rugged open spaces for a background, it brings rare pictorial charm to the screen and provides a setting of grandeur to Miss Crawford's excellent performance.

The city bapper who zets her man out where the West begins, Joan is more appealing than ever before, refreshing in the out-of-door atmosphere and completely captivating in a splendid portrayal of the role. Johnny Mack Brown, who plays opposite, scores again as a consistently fine player.

Handsome comedy drama. Not the least in this unusual romance of Montana is the comedy interest injected by that side-splitting team of Cliff (Ukulele) Keen and Benny Rube. You certainly remember them from "Marianne." Well, here they are as cowboys (if you can imagine that) and what Benny doesn't know about horses Cliff doesn't know either. With Karl Dane as their foil, Cliff and Benny win the gold-plated pitchfork for comedy humor.

Reckless Motor Driving

With the approach of spring the time drawn near when once again the roads and highways of the country will be thronged with tens of thousands of automobiles and the streets of our larger cities jammed with traffic. Some tourists will again be in our midst, while week-end trips from our centres of population to summer resorts and other vacation spots will engage the attention of the residents of all urban and many rural sections.

In the result to be hanging up of another new high record number of fatalities arising out of automobile accidents? In 1931 to provide another dark spot on our much vaunted civilization with as much recklessness in automobile driving and resultant deaths as were recorded in 1930? Are the more and better highways being provided all over the country to have the tragic outcome of steadily adding to the death toll because people using much better roads exercise less care in operating their cars?

Recent figures published by the city of Regina show a very large increase in the number of accidents reported in 1930 as compared with previous years, and what is true of Regina is true of practically every city in Canada and the United States.

A United States magazine in a recent issue dealt with the rising death toll due to reckless automobile driving across the line. While these figures apply only to the United States they disclose a state of affairs which is equally applicable to Canada. A few of the facts established may well be quoted.

Motor accidents in the United States, in 1930, killed 32,500 people, and injured more than 860,000—in other words, one million victims. More than 2,000 little children under the age of five were killed and more than 45,000 were injured.

The magazine notes that the World War did not take a greater toll of American lives in battle.

Remarkable as it may seem, this magazine considers that the most encouraging aspect of the accident list is the fact that recklessness was its principal cause, saying: "If carelessness and over-confidence kill and injure so many, carefulness and consideration can prevent such losses."

Evidence goes to show that the majority of accidents occurred on straight and dry roads, in broad daylight, with experienced and mature drivers at the wheel. In an overwhelming majority the machine functioned properly; the man was at fault. He took unjustified chances.

In a striking analysis of accident reports from forty States, a well known insurance company dispels many cherished illusions on this subject. Contrary to a common impression, women were proved to be safer drivers than men. Young men at their best physical development were the worst offenders.

Improper driving and nothing else was responsible for more than two-thirds of all the deaths and injuries recorded in 1930, according to the wrong side of the road, and failure to grant right-of-way, all evidences of improper driving, accounted for 68 per cent. of the accidents.

The violations of the laws as well as of common sense took a heavy toll. Failure to signal caused the deaths of 490 people, and accounted for the injuries of 49,298. More than 80,000 accidents resulted from motorists driving off the roadway.

What we have to live by is the fact that the majority of accidents, however, was the improper attempt to take the right-of-way from some other traveler—selfishness, hoghousness.

As might be expected, week-end driving is most hazardous. Sunday is the worst day by far, and Saturday is next.

There was a time when drivers of cars, poor brakes, etc., were held responsible for most accidents. Today the fact has been well established that as drivers become more experienced, the more they have learned to operate safely at sea safety. The records of the railroads are marvellous. Where safety is the goal, airplanes have achieved miracles in protecting human life. In other words, we can operate high-powered, fast moving machines if we put our minds to it.

What we have to live by is the fact that the majority of accidents, however, was the improper attempt to take the right-of-way from some other traveler—selfishness, hoghousness.

Drivers must be made to realize that they are steering three or four thousand pounds of steel in swift momentum, the possible destructive power of which is enormous.

Safety is worth more than anything else. The maiming, and the killing, and the destruction of millions of property must be stopped, and we, the average drivers, can do it.

When you drive remember, says this magazine writer, that a lot of idlers are on the road, and that you may have to protect yourself against both fools and mad dogs, and occasional drunks, as well as against absent-minded pedestrians and heedless children. In such a fashion you will at least have your contribution to national safety and, incidentally, you will get more pleasure and more use out of your car and.

La Grippe and "Flu" are Spreading

"Flu" First Appears as a Sore Throat, but Gains Tremendous Headway in Six Hours

AN EFFECTIVE TREATMENT DESCRIBED

Nearly every case of "Flu" starts with a simple cold. At first the throat is sore often just a little hoarse—soon the infection goes lower—then the chest is affected. A safe plan is to gargle the throat three times daily with "Nerviline" which will keep the throat free from germs. If there is any sign of tightness in the chest, rub on Nerviline—very drop penicillin—dearly—congestion will be relieved—the cold will break up quickly. Many a dangerous case of "Flu" can be avoided by this simple home treatment.

Experienced mothers know how valuable Nerviline is for Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, and the little ailments that arise in every family. Nerviline in most homes is called "Mother's Best Friend." 50c at all dealers.

World's Leading Flyer

French Aviator Wins Award Holding Five World Records

Diondaneu, Costa, Paris-to-New York Flyer, has been designated the world's premier aviator by the awards committee of the International League of Aviators.

Miss Amy Johnson, who flew from London, England, to Australia, was given highest honors among women flyers by the awards committee received at the Elysée Palace by President Doumergue and presented with silver cups at a formal ceremony.

Costa's only rival at the committee session was Wing Commander Charles Kingsford-Smith, the "Aussie" trainee, and the Frenchman was chosen because he holds five world records in addition to the accomplishment of his Atlantic flight.

The committee also ordered medals to be struck to honor Mrs. Victor Bruce, Maryse Bastie and Mrs. Charles Lindbergh.

Dr. Hugo Eckener was designated the world's premier dirigible pilot.

Usual Operation

Piece of Dental Plate Is Removed From Lung Of Patient

A piece of dental plate, measuring 1 1/2 inches by 1 inch and holding three teeth, was taken from the lung of Victor Brande, Cochran's lumber merchant, by Dr. R. H. McKenna, of the Lockwood Clinic in Toronto, after one of the most unusual operations in medical records.

Four months ago Brande was seized with a violent coughing spell, and, without knowing it, bit upon the metal dental plate. The broken portion passed down his throat and lodged in his lungs.

The bronchoscopic instrument used for retrieving objects from the lungs was used and it took more than two hours of very delicate manipulation by the doctor before he was successful.

An Ever-Present Menace
 Carbon Monoxide Gas Most Treacherous Because No Warning Given

A recent bulletin issued by the Roads Department of the Province of Quebec, contains an important reference to the danger created by the presence of carbon monoxide, a menace all the greater because it may extend even to an automobile in motion.

The note is well worth careful perusal by all motor drivers. Carbon monoxide is a colorless, tasteless, practically odorless gas, and is without any irritant action on the mucous or respiratory tract.

Because of these properties, it is impossible to detect it by any of the five senses. It is, therefore, a most treacherous gas, since it can be present in dangerous quantities without giving any warning whatever.

PARLIAMENT IS OPENED WITH MUCH CEREMONY

Ottawa, Ont.—History was made in the senate chamber of Canada's parliament buildings. For the first time since Confederation, a Canadian acted as representative of His Majesty the King, in opening parliament, when Edouard Lacombe, P. C., administrator and acting chief justice of the Supreme Court of Canada read the speech from the throne.

Despite the absence of the governor-general all the color, the ceremony and the pomp associated with the opening of the Dominion parliament was in evidence. Booming cannon, brass bands, shining uniforms, beautiful gowns all played their part in the occasion. For the ceremonies were gathered many of those most prominent in the political, religious, diplomatic and social life of the Dominion.

His Excellency the administrator, arrived with the booming of guns and the notes of the national anthem. He was escorted to the senate chamber, taking his seat there on the vice-regal throne. Around him stood or sat representatives of the government, the army, navy and air force, the church, the courts, foreign governments, galleries were crowded.

In the meantime, the commoners had gathered in the House of Commons, the scene of many doubtful battles in days gone by. They waited for ten or fifteen minutes in friendly conversation, greeting and handshaking. Hon. Ernest Lapointe, former minister of justice, just recovered from an illness, was the first to give friendly greetings from those on both sides of the House.

At last came the three sharp knocks on the door. The sergeant-at-arms hurried to open and admit the gentlemen usher of the black rod conveying the members to the Senate. Led by Hon. George Blain, speaker, the commoners trooped through the marble paved corridor to the red chamber, filling all available space and jostling each other good naturedly as they went along. Then the speech was read.

It contained certain interesting declarations, although following along lines already expected. A tariff revision was announced, but only "incidental adjustments" to present tariff schedules were made. Legislation will be introduced to create a tariff board. This is in line with announcements made by the prime minister some time ago.

Introduction of radio legislation is postponed pending the report of the courts on the question of jurisdiction. Estimates will be cut down. Action of some kind with respect to old age pensions, aid to agriculture, technical education and highway construction was forecast. Further assistance was given in the marketing of Canadian wheat. Amendments to the Naturalization Act and to the Copyright Act, and a "provision to provide for the more effective control of national finance" will be introduced.

The speech contained an optimistic declaration with respect to the future of Canada, and an assertion that the tariff changes made at the past session had already proven beneficial.

Having listened to the speech in both official languages, members of the Commons returned to their own chamber. A night delay followed while the prime minister was donning the Windsor uniform and donning less ceremonial clothing. His entrance was the signal for an ovation from his followers.

In order to benefit, the purchaser must show that the carload consisted of at least 15 head of female cattle, not under eight months and not over five years of age.

Only cattle that have been freed by a Dominion veterinarian to be free from tuberculosis or other disease may be included in a shipment and the animals must be shown to be free from a producing standpoint. The new policy goes into effect immediately.

London, England.—Limitation of French and Italian naval programs until 1936 is definitely laid down in the terms of the British-French-Italian naval accord, made public recently.

Work For Unemployed

Says More Relief Money Earned In Manitoba Than Any Other Western Province

Winnipeg, Man.—Hon. W. R. Clubb, director of relief projects, replied to Conservative charges that Dominion government money had been withheld from unemployed in Manitoba with an assertion that more unemployment relief money had been earned in Manitoba than any other western province. He told the legislature that projects financed jointly by the Dominion, province and municipalities had been started promptly last fall and would be continued in the spring.

This province, said Mr. Clubb, had led the way in providing jobs for the out-of-work. Instead of money being withheld, it had been paid out in late fall and winter construction. More would go to men now out of jobs when some of the largest projects were started in the spring.

By using Dominion Government relief money in constructing Manitoba's link of the trans-Canada highway, Mr. Clubb said more men had been employed than if the province had done the work alone. A "wider and better" road would be the result, he added.

Pool Elevator PROBE IS ASKED FOR MANITOBA

Winnipeg, Man.—Charges that Manitoba Pool elevators deprived their farmer-shareholders of "enormous sums" through overages and under-grading may be probed by the provincial government.

Premier John Bracken had before him for consideration two requests for the appointment of a royal commission to inquire into the operation of the Pool elevators. One was from J. R. Murray, vice-president of the Alberta Grain Company Limited, the other was delivered from Colin H. Burnell, president of the Manitoba Wheat Pool.

With both the accused and accused demanding a governmental investigation, it seemed certain that a commission would be appointed, although grain authorities here thought the provincial wait action of the Dominion government which, it has been rumored, soon will appoint a commission to conduct a probe into grain marketing.

Premier Bracken refused comment on the letters. He said the government would have time to study the texts before announcing the stand to be taken. "I have nothing to say at present," he told newspaper interviewers.

"That should be satisfactory," said Mr. Murray, when advised that the commission would be appointed. The cooperative organization had requested a commission of investigation. "My charges are an attack on the Pool by the grain trade," he said. "I sought the probe on my own responsibility, in the interests of my many good friends among the farmers."

Mr. Burnell branded the charges of "extravagantly high expenses," "absolute fraud" in his letter to the premier, and urged that a commission be appointed "as soon as possible" to probe the allegations.

In a letter to Mr. Bracken, Mr. Murray made his charges against the Pool elevators operation, and urged a governmental inquiry. He charged that farmers were "involved" in becoming shareholders in Pool elevators, had been deprived of large sums through overages and under-grading to meet "extravagantly high expenses" and that the latter had been concealed from shareholders by "book-keeping devices."

The letter from Mr. Burnell to the premier read: "I have seen in the public mind the total number of men given employment was 38,554 up to February 28, 37,914 men-days work have been provided to additional 151 individuals were given direct relief."

WORK OF IRWIN IN INDIA PRAISED BY BALDWIN

London, England.—In the autumn of this year, the Indian around world will meet in London, England, with the members of the Indian National Congress, representing the Dominion. But they will be ready to be consulted on Indian policy, nor do they rule out Conservative participation in the autumn conference.

So much emerges from drastic debate on India in the House of Commons. Turbanned figures here and there in the galleries sent an exultant touch to the scene. Lord Irwin, the viceroy, and Gandhi swept across the India stage, but it was the battle of Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader, with his die-hard and his challenge, long and strong, to the floor which held and gripped the House.

As he threw down his challenge, Mr. Baldwin turned his back on the audience, the packed benches of his followers. He would be declared, approach the Indian question with no negatively spirit.

"But if there are those in the Conservative party," he proceeded, who would approach the Indian question in a negatively and grudging spirit, who would have concessions forced from a reluctant hand, it was the battle of majority then in God's name let them choose another leader.

"But if they are in the minority," Mr. Baldwin went on, seemingly reassured by the thunderous cheers from many of his followers, "then let them refer to me through further difficulties in the way of those who have undertaken an almost superhuman task."

When Mr. Baldwin quoted from a speech delivered by Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill, so-called "die-hard" on the Indian question, a dozen years ago, in which Mr. Churchill pleaded for cooperation between the two countries, he seemed to score over his brilliant colleague who sat only a few seats away from his leader.

Mr. Churchill made no reference to the Baldwin challenge. "To the accomplishment of this task," he declared, "I have agreed with the Baldwin policy against Conservative participation in round table conferences in India, and like Mr. Baldwin, Mr. Churchill did not rule out Conservative participation in the London conference."

But while the leader and Mr. Churchill followed the same path so they differed widely over the Irwin-Gandhi conversations.

The changing East, said Mr. Baldwin, was changing and had changed. Lord Irwin had reached an agreement which, Mr. Baldwin believed, could have been reached by no other means. This figure did not include the large area of goodwill and cooperation in India.

"I believe now, as I believed then," he declared, the Conservative leader, "that if party co-operation were once broken the whole problem of government in India would be insoluble and impossible, and I, for one, would not accept the responsibility of attempting it."

THE WAY TO HEALTH

If we desire health, if we desire the happiness, the good appearance and the ability required to do our best work both for ourselves and for others which is possible only through the possession of health, we should consider what is the way to health. It is necessary that we learn how to live so that body and mind may receive the care required to keep them in a healthy condition. Knowledge in such is worthless in securing the desired results. It is practice that counts. The factor that determines whether or not we enjoy a condition of health is our manner of life.

In order to practice a hygienic mode of life it is necessary that we make it a matter of habit. To begin with we must think before we act we must remind ourselves to wash our hands before eating, to clean our teeth night and morning, and to raise the bed-room window at night. After a time these become a matter of habit, a matter of habit, we do them unconsciously. In order to have health, we must have good health habits. When we have good health habits we may claim to have secured a good health education. It is not a simple matter to establish habits of any kind, but good health habits are as easy to gain as undesirable ones. It is necessary.

To make a start, and then to persist until the habit is formed. The practice must be regular and exceptions must not be made. Every time the practice is missed a new start must be made, which only makes the acquiring of the habit more difficult. The health habits are not numerous, and are they difficult to form. Their practice does not entail any expense and yet health is not to be secured in any other way than through them. Failure to practice good health habits leads, sooner or later, to a loss of health if not to actual disease.

The order in life good habits are formed, the better, but it is never too late to learn. However, the formation of habits, more difficult in later years, because it means that any bad habits must be overcome. It is never a kindness to a young child to permit him to form undesirable habits, because the day will come when he will have to pay in the results, which grow out of such habits.

The health habits have to do with diet, rest, exercise, fresh air, sunshine, elimination and cleanliness, and upon these rests the health of each and every one of us.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 140 College St., Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

TO LECTURE IN STATES ON WESTERN CANADA

T. W. Mr. McDougall's talks were illustrated by moving pictures from the Canadian National Railways' library. The demand for pictures of the West Indies indicated the interest which has been developed by increased travel between Canada and the southern islands, while pic-

Lectures were given last week in Manitoba, rural points by Mr. McDougall and, at the end of this month, he leaves for western Canada and the United States where he will give several illustrated talks on the beauties of western Canada.

Speaking of farm relief, it's about time the farmer had relief from the advice being handed out by arm-chair farmers and sceptical avers of agriculture.

Our idea of a sweet job is gathering sap to the maple woods.

And now it is announced that rubber can be made from wheat. Some of our Chinese restaurants have been making it for years, and serving it in the form of brown discs which the breakfast consumers with the aid of maple syrup and coffee.

GOVERNMENT BY THE PEOPLE

In Alberta we are supposed to have government by the people, but have we? An examination of the voting at the last election reveals that we have not. The P. P. A. elected 26 members with 24,187 votes; the conservative party elected 6 members with 25,439 votes; the Liberals elected 11 members with 46,275 votes; it took 27,851 votes to elect 3 independent members, while the Labor party elected 1 member with 14,224 votes. The government has 26 members in the house, and disregarding the three elected by avocation, we find that it required only 260 votes to elect a P. P. A. majority. The Labor members, courted by the government, were each elected by 224 votes, while it required 224 votes to elect each of the Liberal, Conservative, and independent members on the opposition side of the house.

This unfair representation has existed ever since the P. P. A. Government took office in 1921. It is a remarkable situation, and it is difficult to understand how it is permitted to continue in a democratic country. It is not government by the people; the people if they would appear to be a government by the party for the party.

THE FARM PROBLEM

If the farmer doesn't raise the right kind of produce and adopt an agricultural policy that will not hit the greatest returns this year, it will not because nobody has offered him advice as to what to do.

Never has there been such a plethora of advice on farming, such a superabundance of proposals for solving the farm problem.

The farmer has been literally buried in an avalanche of well-meant advice from persons who seem to think it is their duty to come to the rescue of agriculture and save the industry from financial ruin.

These self-appointed counselors of agriculture tell the farmer he should raise hogs or sheep, that he should adopt a policy of mixed farming, that he should specialize in raising or dairying, that he should diversify so that he produces a variety of products, that he should specialize—or that he shouldn't.

The advice volunteered by these "wise sages" of agriculture is contradictory and debatable. It is truly confusing to the man of the soil, and were he to attempt putting into practice the various farm policies advocated for his benefit he would soon bring about his own ruin.

The farmer, like every other business man, desires to make as large a profit as possible. He doesn't farm just for the fun of it, although most farmers enjoy their chosen vocation. He farms to make money, and if he believes he can make more money raising wheat than any other crop, then he raises wheat. Or if he believes dairying to be the most profitable branch of agriculture, he goes in for dairying.

Every district is best suited for some particular branch of agriculture, and every farm has its own peculiar characteristics which may or may not enable it to fit in with that particular branch of agriculture, which is generally practiced in the district.

The question of markets is an important factor in determining the type of produce grown in any district, for obviously it is useless to raise large quantities of farm produce if a market for it cannot be found. The farmer must raise some other product that is saleable.

Each farmer therefore, must work out for himself. He must study his own problem, must shape his policy to conform with his own particular type of farm and his skill and experience as a dairymen, stockman, grain grower, or any other line of agricultural endeavor.

Agriculture is continually progressing. Experimental farms and indi-

These are the windows where my son looks out

On larger fields of ripe experience. There is a druggery men talk about, I had found it of small consequence;

The many tasks that bind the eager feet. No more oppress me with their weight of care. For I have learned a secret that is sweet—

These are my wings to try the morning air. All that I might have been may be in these;

This one may launch the song I did not sing.

And that one hold the dream I could not seize.

Through all the twilight of remembering.

These are my windows that let in the light.

At every dawn—these are my wings for flight.

Transplanting the Saskatoon (Experimental Farms Note)

Native and hardy though it is, it is, according as far down the Markerville as the Ramparts, within fifteen miles of the Arctic Circle, the Saskatoon bush is often successfully transplanted. Hundreds of people have had experience similar to that met by the writer in his first trial, when the whole bush was moved, the top not being cut back at all. After a while a few spinally shoots grew up around the base. Presently they shivered up the dried-out wood topped and the attempt ended in failure.

It was noticed, however, that where a Saskatoon patch was plunged through in breaking and was left a few weeks, numerous long white shoots would be found issuing from the knotted, double root-masses. If they were left undisturbed for a year or two a vigorous new growth would spring up. It seemed plain that anything which would value tree so successfully must be capable of being transplanted.

In accordance with this hint from Nature the most attempt was made by grubbing out the club masses of roots turned up by the breaking plough, chopping off most or all the top and striking the roots (thickly into a furrow, which was then filled up as a potato drill might be).

In cases a stump of wood was left protruding, however none. As a matter of convenience the planting was done in June. Growth was slow but sure. During the first summer the aerial stems did not become over 2 or 3 inches tall. The next year they grew six or eight inches; the third perhaps one and a half or two feet. All that established themselves survived, and few things on the Beaverfoot Station attract more favourable attention than the two long boxes of Saskatoons.

Subsequent plantings have been made both spring and autumn. Experiments are under way to ascertain the most favourable season for planting and to determine whether or not the leaving of a short stump or top might be an advantage.

It is too early in season to report, but present advice is to plant, preferably in late fall or early spring. It is strongly recommended that the top growth, if left at all, be pruned back much more severely than is practiced with most other species of plants.

W. H. Albright, Superintendent, Dominion Experimental Substation, Beaverfoot, Alberta.

Mrs. E. Heryford and children spent a few days last week visiting Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Campbell and Veri and Mrs. A. H. J. Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Guyatt were callers at the home of Mrs. Hoffbauer last Monday.

AUTO OWNERSHIP AMONG FARMERS HIGH
More than sixty per cent of farmers own automobiles in Western Canada, according to a recent survey. This, it is revealed, is a larger percentage of ownership than in any urban centers. It is also shown that more than 25 per cent of farmers own and operate a tractor. There are more than 55,000 tractors in use in the West, the sales for which totalled $44,871 during the past 12 years. This, of course, does not include either used tractors or those brought in from the United States by settlers as "settlers' effects."

REGISTRATIONS TOUCH FEW HIGH FIGURES
Registration of motor vehicles in Canada during the year 1930 reached the highest figure in the history of the Dominion. In spite of the abnormally sale of new cars, total registrations amounted to 1,222,932, representing an increase over 1929 of 45,392 units. Of the total registrations, 1,056,678 were passenger cars and 166,254 commercial cars. Increases in both passenger and commercial cars were shown in eight of the nine provinces, the exception being Saskatchewan, where an apparent decrease of 1,269 units is shown on available figures. Of all the provinces showing gains Ontario leads the list, with an increase of 22,965 registrations.

FRIDAY 12th HAS NO FEAR FOR HARRY SAMMONS

Following the custom of almost every established steamship company in recent years, the Canadian National Steamship made an attempt to avoid having the "Lady Sammons" sail from Halifax for the West Indies on Friday, March 13, according to Osborne Scott, general passenger agent at Wharfedale. He says as the liner was scheduled to sail at one o'clock on the morning of the auspicious date, possibly she may have quit her dock a little early, and managed to sight herself as having sailed late Thursday, March 12. Whether she did or not, Canadian National Steamship officials are not telling.

BLACK POPULAR
A great race between colors in the popular style shades for automobiles is now in progress, with black and blue vying for first honors, and the dark horse, maroon, running a close third after a sensational climb from sixth and last places. It is interesting to note how these color trials are determined. Color gallantries are determined. Color gallantries are determined in compiling the color trends and are secured from reports representing the number of gallons used of each color in production of automobiles each month. The figures are pooled and forwarded to a statistical bureau for tabulation by means of a special formula which enables the index to portray the relative popularity of prominent color families used in the automobile industry. The index determines the exact relation that each year-after-the-year and their relative progression.

In a recent announcement, Dr. Jagger describes how he happened to be driving in his motor car to visit a friend when the earthquake took place. On arriving at the friend's house he was astonished to find the inhabitants in great excitement and the house partly ruined. A violent shock had occurred, while he was motoring, yet in spite of his long experience as an earthquake observer he had felt nothing. "Even when I was in motion," Jagger continues, "a sudden on springs and rubber tires produces almost no sensation during a 'quake, while homes may rattle and roar with the aftershocks." During earthquakes that followed," he stated, "many people left their homes and slept in their motor cars."

"I do," said Sonny suddenly. "I'll take you another pie if you want one."

Holliday laughed, and answered, "I rather think my digestion won't stand for it," he replied. "And besides, I must go home and get ready for my guest. I'll come back later and find out what you hear from the nurse." Mrs. Hastings just now Julie's waiting for my orders. It's time to see this man of yours about again, isn't it?"

He turned away, while Sonny slid down the steps to join him, slipping his little hand into James Holliday's as confidently as he would have put it into Nick's.

"I got a oven where I bake 'em," he said sociably. "Daddy made it. Daddy can make anything. I'll show you 'fore you go home."

"Gay," murmured Nick softly, "you ought to have seen the man when the kid offered him that pie! I don't believe he ever blazes it, his life—if he did he'd be forgotten here. But it's fine of him to do so much for that little girl."

Gay didn't answer. She was watching James Holliday bending above the pile of stones that was Sonny's oven. In the silence she heard her little boy explaining: "You put 'em there first, and then brown 'em on the tops, same as Mummy does, only me can't have matches. Daddy says me just don't need matches. He says they're sun-baked, and the flavor's more 'licious that's a way. Some day when you got time I'll let you make 'em."

"Thanks," said James Holliday.

for ANY CHILD

WE can never be sure just what makes a child restless, but the remedy can always be the same. Good old Castoria! Pleasant-tasting in every drop of this pure vegetable preparation, and so often as your child has a fretful spell, or is fussy, or cries and can't sleep, let Castoria soothe and quiet him. Sometimes constipation, or diarrhoea—a condition that should almost never come without delay. Just keep Castoria handy, and give it promptly. He'll follow very promptly; if it doesn't, you should call a physician.

a young girl wants—and she still is a girl, you know, in spite of her life-family."

"I think you might give her something new to eat, Mary. Gay's not the sort who would take coffee. Can't you pretend you got them for yourself and they were—well—too small or something?"

Mary Maxwell glanced down at her generous proportions, and smiled at the husband's naive suggestion.

"I fear, my dear, that Gay would see through a subterfuge like that. Johnny, do you suppose old Mr. Bartlett gives her anything?"

"It wouldn't surprise me; though clothes are the last item he would notice."

"I don't know. Those days he was with the babies he noticed everything. He's a wonderful old man. I wish he'd give Gay an allowance."

"Well, I don't," John Maxwell spoke with decision. "There's nothing better for a man than having to scratch gravel to provide for his wife and children. In my opinion Nick's marriage has been the making of him. Not that he wasn't all right before; but he needed ballast, and Gay provides that in just the right amount. I shouldn't want Simonetta to do too much for that."

"Well," sighed Mary, with a thought for the days when her husband had longed for the unattainable, "I suppose you're right, and possibly Mr. Bartlett agrees with you. I feel sure there's nothing he wouldn't do for that little girl."

This was true. It sometimes took Simonetta's heart not to lift all Gay's financial burdens. Only his shrewd good sense kept him from doing it. He had, however, taken care of the bills incurred by Nick's illness, saying when Gay protested, "It's only a loan, dearie. Better owe me than the doctor. He needs it more'n I do; and Nick can pay me back any time it comes handy."

"But I've the hundred dollars you gave me, Uncle Sam. That'll pay some of it. I can't go into debt to anyone, you know, and spend the money for silly clothes."

"I ain't askin' you to spend it for silly clothes, dearie. Clothes ain't silly if they make a woman look right to her man. It ain't often I give a present and tell folk just what they got to do with it. That ain't no way to give; but this is different. Run along now, and do your shopping. If you don't, I'll do it for you, and there's a 'nawny' what outrageous diamonds I might buy."

Hence the smart little gown that had caught Mary Maxwell's approving eye, and which also caught the eye when Gay appeared at the bank that afternoon.

"Where'd you get it?" he questioned through his little window, for once unimpaired of the fact that Sonny was begging for admittance. "You look like a peach. I bet you've overdone our account—and I don't care a darn if you do. If there weren't so many people round here I'd—"

"No love making allowed in banking hours," came from the next cage as Johnny Simonetta caught the eye of Nick's remark. "How do you manage to get him going like that after all these years, Gay?"

"The recipe's simple. Get a new gown and spring it on your man unexpectedly. You tell that to Flora."

"Nothin' doin'," said Johnny, smiling broadly. "Flora doesn't need any urging to buy new gowns. Run along, Gay. We need the services of our paying teller, and he's still spellbound. Not that I blame him. You look a regular corker this afternoon."

To Discuss New Calendar

League Of Nations Will Debate Question This Year

A serious effort is to be made by the League of Nations at Geneva this year, to reform the calendar and bring about thirteen months of twenty-eight days each. Our present calendar has been working since 46 B.C., and there are many advocates who declare it has outlived its usefulness for modern needs. There will be a preliminary conference at Geneva, and then a general one to discuss the issue after which the governments of the world will be appealed to. Indeed, it is a most revolutionary change contemplated after 1,077 years' use of the present calendar.

Soviet Farm Movement

Development Of Farms To Be Intensified In Russia

Soviet Russia is going "back to the farm," according to figures just issued by the government. During the last ten days in January and the first ten in February, a total of 72,000 families joined the collective farms, the figures show. This migration is the greatest in history. Development of these farms has always been the backbone of the Soviet movement.

Most of the families who have applied to join the movement came from the Ukrainian Republic, the North Caucasus, the upper and lower Volga and the German republic. They were expected to move to the farms gradually during the spring in time to get next season's crops planted.

The Well-Dressed Italian

Tights and cylinders are required this season at all Italian social or governmental functions in the daytime. Invitations, beautifully engraved, are going around with the words "Tights with cylinders are obligatory in the lower left corner."

"Tights" referred to the close fit of the English morning coat. And the cylinder is a top hat.
